According to Wikipedia, "A director is a person who directs the making of a film. A film director visualizes the script, controlling a film's artistic and dramatic aspects, while guiding the technical crew and actors in the fulfillment of his or her vision." Sometimes, the director shares artistic control with a producer. The producer can "have veto power over everything from the script itself to the final cut of the film, often in anywhere from slight to extreme opposition to the director's vision."

As a director, what were some of the challenges you faced and your triumphs in the following areas:
